Kan. Puts Darwin in Doubt

Board approves education standards questioning evolution

TOPEKA, KAN. | Risking the kind of nationwide ridicule it faced six years ago, the Kansas Board of Education approved new public-school science standards Tuesday that cast doubt on the theory of evolution.

The 6-4 vote was a victory for "intelligent design" advocates who helped draft the standards. Intelligent design holds that the universe is so complex that it must have been created by a higher power.

Critics of the new language charged that it was an attempt to inject God and creationism into public schools in violation of the separation of church and state.

Supporters of the new standards said they will promote academic freedom.

All six of those who voted for the new standards were Republicans. Two Republicans and two Democrats voted no.

"We're becoming a laughingstock of not only the nation, but of the world, and I hate that," said board member Janet Waugh, a Democrat.

The new standards say high school students must understand major evolutionary concepts. But they also declare that evolution has been challenged in recent years by fossil evidence and molecular biology. Decisions about what is taught in classrooms will remain with local school boards, but some educators fear pressure will increase to teach less about evolution or more about creationism or intelligent design. ## Poll: Libby Case Weighs On U.S. Public

WASHINGTON | The recent indictment of Vice President Cheney's top aide has struck a nerve with the American public.

Four in five, 79 percent, said the indictment of former Cheney aide I. Lewis "Scooter" Libby on perjury and other charges is important to the nation, according to a poll by the Pew Research Center for the People & the Press.

Pew noted that in September 1998, 65 percent said President Clinton's lies under oath were important. Clinton was impeached over his handling of an affair with Monica Lewinsky, but was acquitted by the Senate on charges of perjury and obstruction of justice.

Libby was charged with lying to investigators and a grand jury during an investigation of his role in revealing the identity of CIA officer Valerie Plame, wife of an outspoken critic of the war against Iraq.

Most Americans, six in 10, say they do not think the news about Libby's indictment has gotten too much coverage. (AP)

SCIENCE

Hypothesis: Assume the Worst

A Perryopolis, Pa., bomb squad blew up a metal pipe connected to a battery, wires, rope and an electrical switch, only to realize it was an eighth-grade science project. "An electromagnetic fishing pole," Sgt. Robert Clark said, holding the contraption with the battery blown off. A drugstore clerk found the device, made from 3 feet of half-inch metal pipe, near the store's greeting cards display Thursday. (AP)

You Think Money Grows on Trees?

A Savage, Minn., man was in court Monday on charges of running a scam in which he claimed to have a potion that could turn blank paper into money. Franklin T. Forlemu put blank paper between $20 bills, wore an air mask and poured a "chemical" (actually water) on the pile, police said. Then, using sleight of hand, he convinced Nou Chang that the paper had changed to money. Chang produced $70,000 in $100 bills to replicate, which Forlemu then stole. (AP)

Ryan Miles is either astonished or terrified Saturday as he crawls through an exhibit at the Ketchikan Health Fair in Ketchikan, Alaska. Either reaction would be appropriate for fairgoers who made their way through the "Colossal Colon," an oversized model of bowels which offered visitors a first-hand look at representations of various forms of cancer and other colonic maladies. The gargantuan colon was being displayed in Alaska for the first time, which is probably for the best, because little Ryan's therapy bills will already be high enough. (EXPRESS)

Hard-Fought Races End in N.Y., N.J.

Candidates for governor, mayor spent millions

U.S. Sen. Jon Corzine acknowledged a little nervousness as he voted Tuesday in his race for governor of New Jersey, one of several contests being closely monitored for evidence of how the GOP's recent struggles are influencing voters.

Tuesday's voting in New Jersey concluded a campaign that featured more personal attacks than actual talk about the issues. The races there and in Virginia — together the biggest contests in this off-year election season — broke spending records in both states, got progressively nasty and yet remained close.

Several New Jersey voters said Tuesday they were turned off by the candidates' negative campaigning.

"There's just too much mudslinging," said Mike Myers, 52, of Bridgewater. "Why can't they talk about what's important instead of battering each other and their families?"

Corzine, facing Republican businessman Doug Forrester, voted shortly after the polls opened at a fire station in Hoboken. Coming out of the voting booth, he told reporters he was "a little nervous, a little worried but confident."

A few hours later, Forrester voted at a senior center, giving a thumbs-up and expressing only optimism about his chances.

In New York City, Republican Mayor Michael Bloomberg held a clear lead against Democratic underdog Fernando Ferrer, who campaigned with the Rev. Al Sharpton and Sen. Barack Obama of Illinois.

Ferrer, the former Bronx borough president, had spent only about an eighth of the more than $66 million that the billionaire mayor has funneled toward winning a second term. Even in predominantly Democratic New York, many voters remained unconvinced Tuesday by Ferrer's repeated reminders that Bloomberg was a Republican who had campaigned for President Bush. (AP)

Gay Rights Showdowns in Maine, Texas

Voters weigh marriage amendment, repeal of anti-discrimination law

NEW YORK | Showdowns over gay rights dominated the ballot Tuesday in Texas and Maine, as citizens across the U.S. were voting not only for political candidates but also specific measures in referendums.

Texans are deciding if that state will become the 19th to adopt a constitutional amendment banning gay marriage. Like every other state except Massachusetts, Texas does not permit such marriages now, but the amendments have been touted as an extra guard against future court rulings.

In Maine, a church-backed conservative coalition succeeded in placing a measure on the ballot that would repeal a gay-rights law approved by lawmakers earlier this year. The lawmakers expanded the state's human rights act to outlaw discrimination based on sexual orientation, a step already taken by the five other New England states.

California voters will decide whether to require doctors to give a parent written notice before performing an abortion on a minor. Recent polls indicated the California proposal would be defeated. (AP)

Probe Sought in Prisons Leak

Frist, Hastert say story on secret jails harmful to anti-terror efforts

WASHINGTON | Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist and House Speaker Dennis Hastert circulated a letter Tuesday calling for a congressional investigation into the disclosure of alleged secret U.S. interrogation centers abroad.

The Washington Post reported Nov. 2 on the existence of secret U.S. prisons in Eastern Europe for terror suspects. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice sidestepped questions on secret prisons Tuesday, saying the United States was in a "different kind of war" and had an obligation to defend itself.

The Republican leaders' letter said that if the Post story was accurate, "such an egregious disclosure could have long-term and far-reaching damaging and dangerous consequences, and will imperil our efforts to protect the American people and our homeland from terrorist attacks."

The letter was to be sent to Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman Pat Roberts of Kansas and his House counterpart, Intelligence Committee Chairman Peter Hoekstra of Michigan. Hastert's office said he had signed it. There was no immediate word whether Frist had done so.

The Post story of a week ago said that the CIA has been hiding and interrogating some of its most important al Qaeda captives at a Soviet-era compound in Eastern Europe, part of a covert prison system set up by the agency four years ago that at various times has included sites in eight countries. The eight, said the story, include several democracies. (AP)

3 Shot at School in Tennessee

Student gunman kills asst. principal, wounds 2 other administrators

JACKSBORO, TENN. | A student shot and killed an assistant principal and seriously wounded two other administrators at a high school Tuesday, officials said. The student was arrested.

The motive for the shooting at Campbell County High School, 30 miles from Knoxville, was not immediately known, Sheriff Ron McClellan told WVLT-TV.

Several students identified the shooter as a 14-year-old freshman.

Assistant Principal Ken Bruce was killed, according to Rachel Woods of the state Education Department. Principal Gary Seale, who was shot while trying to take the student into custody, was reported in serious condition, and Assistant Principal Jim Pierce in critical condition.

The school was locked down after the shooting, and students were evacuated. "They are searching each student as they are getting on the buses," said Roger Wallace, a driver at a pizza restaurant nearby. (AP)

Ethics Classes Held at White House

WASHINGTON | White House workers, from presidential advisers to low-ranking aides, began attending mandatory lectures on ethical behavior and the handling of classified documents Tuesday after the recent indictment of a high-level official in the CIA leak case.

More than 3,000 employees from agencies and offices under the Executive Office of the President are required to attend the hour-long briefings over the next two weeks.

The briefings were an outgrowth of the indictment of I. Lewis Libby, Vice President Cheney's former chief of staff, on charges of perjury, obstruction of justice and lying to FBI agents in the leaking of the identity of CIA operative Valerie Plame. (AP)

CDC: Gonorrhea on Decline

Rates of other STDs, including chlamydia, syphilis, on the rise

ATLANTA | Gonorrhea has fallen to the lowest level on record in the United States, while the rates of other sexually transmitted diseases — syphilis and chlamydia — are on the rise, federal health officials said Tuesday.

The seemingly paradoxical findings can be explained by the cyclical nature of syphilis outbreaks and a rise in risky sexual behavior among gay men, researchers said.

The nation's gonorrhea rate fell to 113.5 cases per 100,000 people last year, the lowest level since the government started tracking cases in 1941, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

At the same time, health officials saw increases in syphilis, which is far more rare but has been increasing since 2000. The rate of reported early-stage syphilis was 2.7 cases per 100,000 in 2004, up 29 percent since 2000. The chlamydia rate rose to 319.6 cases per 100,000 in 2004, up about 6 percent from the year before. But researchers said it is not clear whether the rise represents a real increase in the prevalence of the disease, or simply reflects better awareness and detection.

DISEASE AND RISKY SEX

DR. RONALD VALDISERRI, acting director of the CDC's National Center for HIV, STD and TB Prevention, said a primary reason for the rebound in syphilis appears to be an increase in risky sexual behavior among gay men.

In 2004, about 64 percent of reported early-stage syphilis infections occurred among men who had sex with men, up from 5 percent in 1999, according to the CDC. "We know that's being fueled by increases in high-risk sexual behavior," Valdiserri said. "We have good data to substantiate that." (AP)

Pentagon Issues Prison Guidelines

WASHINGTON | Thrown on the defensive by abuse of prisoners in Iraq and Guantanamo Bay, the Pentagon has issued a broad new directive mandating that detainees be treated humanely and has banned the use of dogs to intimidate or harass suspects.

The directive pulls together for the first time all of the Defense Department's existing policies and memos covering the interrogation of detainees captured in the war against terrorism. It comes as Congress is considering a ban on inhumane treatment of U.S. prisoners and Democrats have launched a long-shot effort to create a commission to investigate abuse.

The directive says that "acts of physical or mental torture are prohibited" and directs that any violations be reported, investigated, and punished when appropriate.

But the only specific prohibition in the directive says that dogs used by any government agency "shall not be used as part of an interrogation approach or to harass, intimidate threaten or coerce a detainee for interrogation purposes."

The rules are a step in development of a new Army manual. (AP)

France Invokes State of Emergency

Rare security steps taken as nation faces a 'moment of truth'

PARIS | France declared a state of emergency Tuesday to quell the country's worst unrest since the student uprisings of 1968 that toppled a government, and the prime minister said the nation faced a "moment of truth" over its failure to integrate Arab and African immigrants and their children.

The extraordinary security measures, which began Wednesday and are valid for 12 days, clear the way for curfews after nearly two weeks of rioting in neglected and impoverished neighborhoods with largely Muslim communities.

to its egalitarian ideals, reached out to the heavily immigrant suburbs where the rioting began. He said France must make a priority of working against the discrimination that feeds the frustration of youths made to feel that they do not belong in France.

"We must be lucid: The Republic is at a moment of truth," Villepin told parliament. "The effectiveness of our integration model is in question." He called the riots "a warning" and "an appeal."

Arson attacks, rioting and other unrest have spread from the suburbs to hundreds of cities and towns — though acts of violence were down somewhat Monday night from the previous evening.

The state-of-emergency law that President Jacques Chirac invoked was originally drawn up to quell unrest in Algeria during its war of independence from France.

The northern city of Amiens and the central city of Orleans said they planned curfews for minors under age 16, who must be accompanied by adults at night. Amiens also planned to forbid the sale of gasoline in cans to minors. JOHN LEICESTER (AP)

Saddam Trial Lawyer Slain

One defense attorney killed, another injured in bold daylight attack

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Three masked gunmen in a speeding vehicle assassinated a second lawyer in the Saddam Hussein trial Tuesday, casting doubt on Iraq's ability to try the case and leading a prominent war crimes prosecutor to urge moving the proceedings to another Arab country.

Adel al-Zubeidi, lawyer for former Vice President Taha Yassin Ramadan, died when bullets were sprayed his car in a largely Sunni Arab neighborhood of western Baghdad. The shots also wounded Thamir al-Khuzaie, attorney for another co-defendant, Saddam's half brother Barazan Ibrahim.

Al-Khuzaie

The brazen daylight attack on a major avenue came three weeks after the kidnapping of another defense lawyer, Saadoun al-Janabi. His body was found Oct. 20, one day after the trial's opening session, where he represented a former official in Saddam's Baath Party.

No group claimed responsibility for the killings. An Iraqi government spokesman pointed to Saddam loyalists for the latest attack, while the dictator's lawyer blamed the Shiite-dominated government.

Regardless of who was responsible, the killing of another defense lawyer reinforced grave misgivings among human rights groups and international lawyers about holding the trial in a country gripped by a brutal insurgency.

Laith Kubba, spokesman for Iraqi Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari insisted the next session would proceed in Baghdad as planned Nov. 28. ROBERT H. REID (AP)

PEOPLE'S CHOICE: Liberian women line up to vote for their country's first post-war president in a runoff poll between a wealthy soccer star and a top female politician.

Liberians Go to Polls in Heated Runoff Election

MONROVIA, LIBERIA | Liberia voted Tuesday to choose its first postwar president in a heated runoff pitting a soccer star who dropped out of high school against the country's Harvard-educated top female politician.

With U.N. helicopters buzzing over the bombed-out capital, many hoped the vote would herald an era of peace after decades of conflict that displaced a third of the West African nation's 3 million people and left up to 200,000 dead.

One-time player of the year

George Weah and former Finance Minister Ellen Johnson-Sirleaf finished first and second in the Oct. 11 first round, which weeded out 20 other candidates, including warlords and rebel leaders.

Alan Doss, head of the U.N. Mission in Liberia, declared the vote "peaceful and transparent," though U.N. troops arrested five people for minor incidents.

After the polls closed, electoral workers began counting ballots by the light of lanterns. Initial results are expected within days. (AP)

Fujimori Denied Bid For Release

Chilean court orders Peru's ex-leader held as extradition proceeds

SANTIAGO, CHILE | A Chilean Supreme Court justice on Tuesday rejected a bid for freedom by former Peruvian President Alberto Fujimori, who was arrested after his surprise return to Latin America for a possible political comeback.

Justice Orlando Alvarez said Fujimori, who was being held at a police academy, must be held until Peru formally requests his extradition on 21 charges involving corruption and human rights abuses. Peru has 60 days to do that.

Fujimori

Fujimori, 67, was arrested at a local hotel early Monday, hours after his arrival in Chile. He had remained in a protected exile in Japan for five years after resigning the Peruvian presidency amid a corruption scandal surrounding his decade-long regime.

Quake Aid to Pakistan Still Lagging

A month after massive temblor, relief groups face meager cash flow

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | A month after last year's tsunami, aid groups were hailing history's most successful fund-raising drive and starting to rebuild. But one month after an earthquake killed more than 87,000 people in the Himalayas, there is barely enough money to keep relief operations going.

An injured Pakistani man eats breakfast in a tent camp in Muzaffarabad.

Staying alive is all that matters for more than 3 million people left homeless — and with winter bearing down, survival is not assured.

"What is particularly difficult in Kashmir is that people [will] freeze to death if they don't get assistance in weeks," U.N. humanitarian chief Jan Egeland said in New York.

Pakistan's government says about 334,000 tents have been delivered to survivors of the Oct. 8 quake, just over half of the 600,000 that U.N. officials say are needed.

The U.N. said Tuesday it has received only $85 million of the $550 million it has asked for, with about $49 million more pledged.

Pakistani President Gen. Pervez Musharraf at first avoided criticizing the international community but last week lashed out at what he called a double standard.

"I know that the contributions to Katrina were much more. Did the U.S. need more aid than Pakistan?" Musharraf told the British Broadcasting Corp. (AP)

N. Korea Nuke Talks To Resume

BEIJING | North Korea's envoy promised to make "sincere efforts" as diplomats prepared to resume six-nation talks Wednesday aimed at stripping Pyongyang of its nuclear weapons program.

China says the talks in Beijing — the fifth since 2003 — will last three days before a recess to let the diplomats attend an Asia-Pacific economic forum in South Korea. Participants in the nuclear talks are the two Koreas, China, the United States, Japan and Russia.

Both the United States and North Korea, meanwhile, kept up their tough talk Tuesday.

Pyongyang condemned President Bush for calling its leader a "tyrant" on Sunday, saying it raised doubts about the talks, while the new U.S. ambassador to South Korea accused the communist country of human rights abuses. (AP)

Bolivians Keep Skull-Toting Tradition

LA PAZ, BOLIVIA | It's a tradition people outside Bolivia might find creepy: Families perch human skulls on altars and ask them for protection and good luck.

On Tuesday, the skulls were gussied up and taken to cemeteries, where the families crowned them with flowers and filled their jaws with lit cigarettes.

Paying homage to dead relatives with skulls is a long-held tradition in Bolivia.

The chapel in La Paz's main cemetery was filled with hundreds of people jockeying to get their skull, or "natita," in a good position for a special annual Mass.

The tradition reflects, in part, an ancient Andean belief that people have seven souls, and one of them stays with the skull, said anthropologist Milton Eyzaguirre. This soul can visit people in their dreams and provide protection. (AP)

Networks to Sell On-Demand TV

NBC, CBS join ABC in bid to offer instant replays of hit shows

NEW YORK | Will people pay to watch their favorite TV shows when they want to? NBC and CBS are betting on it.

The two networks delivered a major challenge to the half-century old business model of broadcast television Monday by offering on-demand replays of several top shows including "CSI" and "Law & Order: SVU" for 99 cents.

The replays of NBC shows on the satellite broadcaster DirecTV Inc. will be commercial-free, but viewers will have to buy a new digital video recording box which is going on sale next week.

The CBS shows will be offered to roughly 5 million subscribers to Comcast Corp.'s digital cable service, a company spokeswoman said. Those shows will still have commercials, but users will be able to zap through them with their remote controls. Both of the new services are scheduled to start up early next year.

The announcements by NBC and CBS came just weeks after Walt Disney Co.'s ABC network said it would make available episodes of its hit shows "Desperate Housewives" and "Lost" for viewing on Apple Computer Inc.'s new video iPod for $1.99. SETH SUTEL (AP)

Va. Race Remains Tight to the End

Early returns indicate Kaine leading Kilgore in governor's election

In a tight race for Virginia governor, Democrat Lt. Gov. Tim Kaine led in early returns Tuesday over Republican Jerry Kilgore in a race that was closely watched by national political analysts for signs of the public's mood ahead of next year's midterm elections.

With 53 percent of precincts reporting as Express went to press, Kaine led with 491,352 votes, or 51 percent, over Kilgore's 446,023 votes, or 45 percent. Independent candidate Russell Potts Jr. had 20,823 votes, or 2 percent. In the days leading up to the election, polls had the race too close to call.

At least $42 million was spent in the contest between Kaine and Kilgore, the former state attorney general.

Democratic Gov. Mark Warner, who holds high approval numbers, cannot seek a second term.

The Virginia race for governor was marked by nasty personal attacks.

A Kilgore ad alleged that Kaine's opposition to the death penalty meant he would not have executed Hitler. Kaine cites his Roman

No Shake Up Seen for Delegates

RICHMOND, VA. | Thirty-seven incumbents faced challenges Tuesday in House of Delegates elections that were expected to do little to disturb the Republican Party's firm grip on the 100-member legislative body.

Republicans hold 60 seats and Democrats 38 in the House. Two seats are occupied by independents who generally vote with the GOP.

Twenty GOP incumbents and 17 Democrats faced opposition, but 10 of the challengers were independent or minor-party candidates who historically fare poorly against major-party officeholders. There also were a dozen open seats — six Republican, six Democratic — created by 10 retirements and two incumbent losses in the June primaries.

Analysts and leaders of both major parties said little change was expected in the chamber's partisan makeup. (AP)

Never again can anyone ask why Peyton Manning can't beat the Patriots.

Colts Put Big Win In The Past

Dungy downplays any Super Bowl thoughts after topping Patriots

NFL | Peyton Manning stood at his postgame news conference with a rare smile and an unusual twinkle in his eyes. He had finally won at New England, and for once, Manning wanted to savor the moment.

By Tuesday morning, the celebration ended as the Indianapolis Colts looked ahead to their next game against Houston.

For Manning and the Colts (8-0), the aftermath of a 40-21 victory over the two-time defending Super Bowl champs poses the biggest threat now.

Indy fans treated the Patriots game as if it were the Super Bowl, and a conveniently timed bye week played into the buildup. Some figured a victory at New England also meant the Colts punched their ticket to Detroit, site of this year's Super Bowl.

On Tuesday, coach Tony Dungy wasted no time in debunking such thoughts as premature.

"You get all these stats about the last team that won their first eight or nine games or the last unbeaten team going to the Super Bowl," Dungy said. "It's like the Indy-New England spiel, it really doesn't mean anything." MICHAEL MAROT (AP)

Contrite Owens Seeks Forgiveness

Suspended star hopes to play for Eagles again

NFL | For once, Terrell Owens put aside his pride, admitted he was wrong and pleaded for a second chance with the Philadelphia Eagles.

The team appeared unmoved.

A contrite Owens, hoping to overturn his dismissal from the Eagles, on Tuesday apologized to coach Andy Reid, quarterback Donovan McNabb, the team's owner and president, and fans.

"The mentality that I have, my greatest strength can also be my greatest weakness," Owens said, reading a statement outside his house. "I'm a fighter. I've always been and I'll always be. I fight for what I think is right. In doing so, I alienated a lot of my fans and my teammates."

"This is very painful for me to be in this position," he said. "I know in my heart that I can help the team win the Super Bowl and not only be a dominant player, but also be a team player. I can bring that."

His agent, Drew Rosenhaus, said Owens made a public apology in hopes of returning to the Eagles immediately.

Team spokesman Derek Boyko

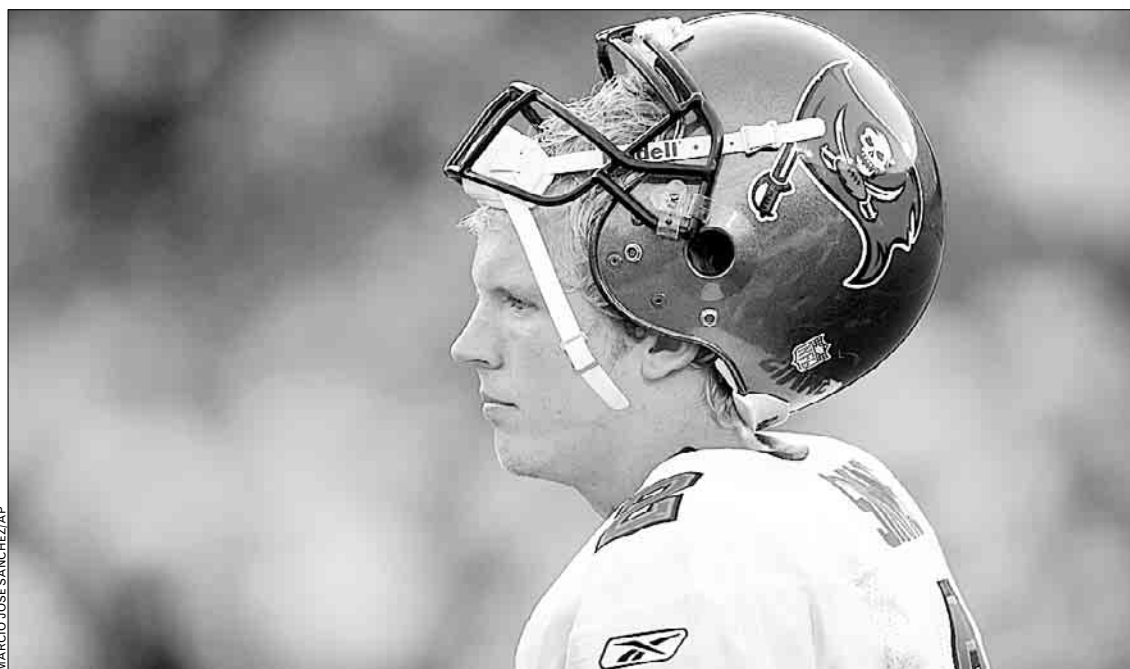

Owens stands silently as agent Drew Rosenhaus fields questions Tuesday.

said the Eagles had no comment.

A day earlier, Owens was told by the team not to return this season because of "a large number of situations that accumulated over a long period of time," Reid said. The receiver didn't play in Sunday night's 17-10 loss at Washington, and will remain suspended for three more games without pay. After that, the Eagles plan to deactivate him for the rest of the season.

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said Tuesday that the players' union has filed a grievance on behalf of Owens seeking to overturn the suspension. It will be heard Nov. 18.

HEAD ABOVE WATER: The Tampa Bay Buccaneers haven't won since Chris Simms became the starting quarterback last month.

Buccaneers Look Like a Sinking Ship

Team fading as it heads into game vs. Redskins

NFL | Don't be fooled by the winning record fashioned against a soft schedule. The Tampa Bay Buccaneers are much closer to being the same team that missed the playoffs the past two years than a club headed back to the postseason.

Starting quarterback Brian Griese is out for the season, rookie running back Cadillac Williams, who keyed a 4-0 start, is hobbling, and opponents are beginning to expose the Bucs for what they are — a young team with a lot of shortcomings.

A 5-3 record halfway through the season should be a reason for optimism. But Tampa Bay is sinking fast after losing three of its past four games to opponents who are a combined 4-12, not to mention winless since beating the Bucs.

The Bucs haven't beaten anyone currently above .500, yet only trail the Panthers, Atlanta Falcons and New York Giants by one game for the best record in the NFC.

"It could be a whole lot worse than where we are," linebacker Derrick Brooks said.

That's true. But with eight games remaining, Tampa Bay, now relying on struggling QB Chris Simms, hardly looks like a team equipped to stay in the race as it heads into Sunday's game against the 5-3 Washington Redskins.

Best of Times for Wizards, Clippers

Two of NBA's hottest teams to meet at the MCI Center tonight

WIZARDS | The last time both the Washington Wizards and Los Angeles Clippers started the season 3-0, there were no Clippers or Wizards. There were Washington Bullets and Buffalo Braves.

Obviously, Wednesday's match-up at the MCI Center is between two teams who have seen a lot of change since then: "It's a preliminary to the NBA Finals. Build that up right now," joked Wizards coach Eddie Jordan.

The fast starts by the new-look Wizards (3-0) and new-look Clippers (3-1) have caught fans' attention around the league. While the Clippers have found success with the addition of stars Cuttino Mobley (17.2 points, 6.5 rebounds per game) and Sam Cassell (17.5 ppg, 6.5 assists per game), the Wizards are enjoying a little newfound depth.

"Last year, it was all about the Big Three. This year, there's a lot more balance," said shooting guard Antonio Daniels, who is nursing an injured ankle.

It's a little reassurance that keeps the big guns comfortable. So while Daniels and shooting guard Caron Butler both take time off to heal, there's not extra pressure on Gilbert Arenas (26 ppg, 4.3 apg) or Antawn Jamison (24 ppg, 9.7 rpg).

"Last year, we had a great starting five, and some great role players," Arenas said. "As a team, we're much better than we were. We're so deep that anybody can play, get in the mix and contribute."

A lot of that contribution has been on the defensive side, where special attention has made the team tops in defense in the NBA through the first three games. "We're better than we were last year. We're deeper. We're tougher," Jamison said.

Urbina Accused of Attempted Murder

CARACAS, VENEZUELA | Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Ugueth Urbina was arrested and held Tuesday pending a formal charge of attempted murder. Last month, Urbina and a group of men allegedly attacked five workers with machetes and poured gasoline on them in an attempt to set them on fire. All five were injured, some of them with cuts and one with burns on the back and right arm, police said.

Urbina, who was detained late Monday, insists he had nothing to do with the violence at his family's ranch Oct. 16. "Everything will be cleared up soon and people will know the truth," he said from his cell. (AP)

Terps' Hollenbach to Start

TERPS FOOTBALL | Sam Hollenbach will start at quarterback Saturday for Maryland, which must win two of its final three games to become eligible for a bowl bid.

Hollenbach strained his left shoulder on Oct. 20 against Virginia Tech and ran only five plays in the Terrapins' 35-27 loss to Florida State nine days later. He's been running practice with the first team this week, and coach Ralph Friedgen expects the junior to run the offense Saturday at North Carolina.

"I don't think he's like he was before he got hurt, but I think he's back to being able to play at full capacity, let's put it that way,"

Sam Hollenbach has thrown for eight touchdowns starting for Maryland this year.

Friedgen said Tuesday.

Hollenbach is 128-for-204 for 1,700 yards and eight touchdowns. He's ranked second in the Atlantic Coast Conference in passing efficiency and has run for 65 yards and two touchdowns.

He could, however, be without key receivers Jo Jo Walker (leg injury) and Drew Weatherly (concussion), both of whom are questionable for Saturday. Friedgen said Walker's injury occurred in practice, but did not explain how Weatherly hurt his head.

One of the players in last week's brawl at an off-campus bar reportedly received a concussion, but Friedgen would not discuss the fight or the four suspensions that stemmed from the incident. "It's behind me," he said. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

Bowden to Interview With Sox

BASEBALL | Washington Nationals general manager Jim Bowden and former Baltimore Orioles boss Jim Beattie will interview with the Boston Red Sox to replace departed GM Theo Epstein.

Red Sox spokesman Glenn Geffner said Monday night the two would likely be interviewed by controlling owner John Henry and team president Larry Lucchino. The time and place of the interviews hasn't been determined.

In addition, the Red Sox have received permission to interview two officials of unidentified teams. Boston will announce the names when the interviews have been scheduled.

Bowden, Cincinnati's general manager from 1992-03, replaced Omar Minaya as GM of the Montreal Expos/Washington Nationals after the 2004 season. (AP)

Sykora Leaves Caps After 10 Games

CAPITALS | Center Petr Sykora will return to his Czech Republic club after playing in only 10 games with Washington, which assigned him to Pardubice of the Czech Republic Extraleague on Tuesday.

"Petr wanted to return to the Czech Republic and we have agreed to the transfer," Capitals GM George McPhee said. "Given the development of our young players, and the need to create room for them on our roster, we believe this is the best decision for all involved." (AP)

Beware of Home Inspection Pitfalls BEFORE You Put Your Home Up For Sale

According to industry experts, there are over 33 physical problems that will come under scrutiny during a home inspection when your home is for sale. A new report has been prepared which identifies the eleven most common of these problems, and what you should know about them before you list your home for sale.

Whether you own an old home or a brand new one, there are a number of things that can fall short of requirements during a home inspection. If not identified and dealt with, any of these 11 items could cost you dearly in terms of repair. That's why it's critical that you read this report before you list your home. If you wait until the building inspector flags these issues for you, you will almost certainly experience costly delays in the close of your home sale or, worse, turn prospective buyers away altogether.

In most cases, you can make a reasonable pre-inspection yourself if you know what you're looking for. And knowing what you're looking for can help you prevent little problems from growing into costly and unmanageable ones.

To help home sellers deal with this issue before their home is listed, a free report entitled "11 Things You Need to Know to Pass Your Home Inspection" has been compiled which explains the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-801-4908 and enter ID# 4401. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call NOW to learn how to ensure a home inspection doesn't cost you the sale of your home.

Spurrier Readies to Face the Gators

The ol' ball coach gets shot against ex-team with South Carolina

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | His Heisman Trophy is displayed outside the locker room. So are photos of his six Southeastern Conference championship teams and the 1996 national title trophy. His name and No. 11 jersey are painted inside Ben Hill Griffin Stadium.

Steve Spurrier still has quite a presence in Gainesville. It looms even larger this week as the ol' ball coach prepares to face his alma mater and former team for the first time Saturday when South Carolina hosts No. 12 Florida.

"He was a great player and a great coach here, and great universities take care of their own," Gators coach Urban Meyer said. "His stamp will always be on this program and it always should be. It's certainly no one's job to try to eliminate that stamp. It's our job to try to go win an SEC championship this weekend."

Former Redskins coach Steve Spurrier, now at South Carolina, will take on his alma mater on Saturday when the Gamecocks play the University of Florida.

Meyer, Spurrier and players from both teams have tried to downplay the matchup this week, saying it is merely one story line in a game that could decide the SEC Eastern Division. "I don't think it'll be as big a deal as people think it will be," Spurrier said. "As I've said many times, when you're the play-caller, the offensive coach, usually your mind is on the next play, trying to find a good play, trying to get your quarterback to maybe audible or hit a guy."

Spurrier would rather talk about snapping his current program's 14-game losing streak against Florida and staying alive in the division race. The Gators (7-2, 5-2) want to focus on getting back to the conference title game for the first time since 2000. Florida can secure a trip to Atlanta by beating the Gamecocks (6-3, 4-3) and having Auburn upset Georgia later that night. MARK LONG (AP)

Udu Fined for Dangerous Tackle

UNITED | D.C. United midfielder Freddie Adu was fined $500 by MLS on Tuesday for a reckless foul against Chicago's Logan Pause in a playoff game last month. Adu slid with his cleats high when he tackled Pause in the 80th minute of United's 4-0 loss on Oct. 30. United midfielder Christian Gomez also was fined an additional $750 by the league for spitting at Fire defender C.J. Brown in the same game. The fine was in addition to the one-game suspension and $250 fine that Gomez automatically received when he was given the red card. (AP)

Running Game Key For Cavs

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Welcome back, running game.

That might well have been the greeting the Cavaliers got Saturday after rushing for 262 yards in a 51-3 victory against Temple. Wali Lundy ran for a season-high 113 yards and four touchdowns, and Jason Snelling ran for a career-best 126 yards and two scores.

But even struggling teams are expected to fare well against the winless Owls, and coach Al Groh said Tuesday a truer test will come Saturday against No. 24 Georgia Tech. "Everybody feels better about it than if it hadn't happened, but everybody fully recognizes that it'll be quite a challenge to be able to do half as much this week," Groh said. "We're really going to have to prove on a play-by-play basis whether we can run the ball against these guys."

The Yellow Jackets (6-2, 4-2

Atlantic Coast Conference) are coming off a defensive effort in which they held Wake Forest to 100 rushing yards, 115 below its average.

Over three games — all victories — opponents have averaged 285 total yards and 12 points against Georgia Tech, which also has forced nine turnovers in those games.

Earning Its Merit Badge

Peel off the insignia — the new Jetta GLI packs in the premium

ROAD TEST | On the HBO series "Entourage," an entertainment agent-weasel is busted for sticking S600 badges on his wife's Mercedes-Benz S500. His wife doesn't know her car is missing four cylinders and nearly 200 horsepower. All she cares about is the status associated with the S600 badge.

Ari has performed a variation on the practice of "de-badging" — stripping off the insignia that places the vehicle in the carmaker's caste system. In Europe, this is done to dress down expensive cars so as not to draw too much attention.

With this as backdrop, pull out your screwdrivers and go to town on the 2006 VW GLI. This maxed-out version of the Jetta offers a giddy amount of car for the money.

The GLI gets a sport-suspension

If it feels like an Audi and drives like an Audi and you go take a screwdriver and rip off an Audi logo and glue it over the Jetta insignia, well then, hey, it's an Audi.

upgrade, 17-inch wheels and tires, red-painted brake calipers (how did you ever get along without them?), bi-xenon gas headlights and lots of cosmetics, such as a blacked-out honeycomb grill, chrome exhaust tips, and leather and alloy fetish-wear around the cabin.

With the power sunroof, satellite radio, heated sport seats and a few other options, the car comes to — hear the adding machines clacking — $27,605. At that price, the GLI goes feature for feature with the segment's best values.

With the judicious application of said screwdriver, a heat gun and some leverage — voila! — you can have an entry-premium car without, if you will, the premium.

2006 JETTA GLI

→ POWERTRAIN: Turbocharged and inter-cooled, dual overhead cam 2.0-liter four-cylinder with direct injection and variable valve timing; six-speed manual transmission; front-wheel drive with electronic differential lock

→ HORSEPOWER: 200 at 5,500 rpm

→ TORQUE: 207 pound-feet at 1,800 rpm

→ WEIGHT: 3,353 pounds

→ MILEAGE: 24 mpg city, 32 highway

→ 0-60 MPH: 7.1 seconds

→ BASE PRICE: $23,790

→ PRICE, AS TESTED: $27,605

Though the Jetta is no longer an entry-level compact, it still keeps one foot in the low-rent district (all the more reason to use a screwdriver). VW offers a "Value Edition" Jetta (base price of $17,900) with the 2.5-liter five-banger, the five-speed stick, doors, windows, steering wheel. A more tolerably equipped model, the 2.5, costs another $2,400.

This car is certainly quick, punchy just off throttle and quite blustery at mid-rpm when the turbo fully spools up. The GLI's clutch is light and servile, but the gearshift is a tad rubbery.

The car has two features that ought to be standard in all cars — an excellent steering wheel, with pistol-grip-like molding at the 9 and 3 positions and a flat bottom like that on a race-car wheel, and leather-wrapped sport seats (part of a $3,200 option package), with high, rigid bolsters that grab around the ribs. These features give the car a connected, biomechanical feel.

An irony of global conglomerates' "premium" divisions is that, because there is so much part-sharing going on, the lesser brands are often elevated to a point where premium is purely a state of mind. The Jetta GLI feels like an Audi and drives like an Audi because it is, in fact, an Audi. All it needs is an Audi badge.

If you've got a screwdriver, you can get one of those, too.

Car Care

Automotive expert PAT GOSS owns Pat Goss Car World, Inc., a local car repair company. He chats monthly on washingtonpost.com/cars.

I have a '95 Toyota Corolla with a driver's seatbelt that is fully extended and won't retract. What's going on here, and any idea of what it's going to cost to have it fixed?

Bad news, usually it's the inertia reel retractor that goes bad and causes your problem. Other than debris removal, there is no such thing as seatbelt repair. They must be replaced. The next problem, because your car is 11 years old, it may not be available.

I have a rubbing/grinding noise coming from my rear brakes on my Subaru (70,000 miles) when I apply the brakes. Is it time to replace something?

I don't know if it's time to replace anything, but I do know the brakes should have been checked yesterday.

I have a 2004 Acura RSX with 15,000 miles on it. Recently, I've noticed that on medium-to-large bumps in the road, I hear a clicking or creaking. Could the struts be going bad already? The car has been hit in the front and rear-ended already as well.

Struts could have been damaged in one of the accidents. But unfortunately there are about 100 other things that could be causing the noise. I would have it checked as soon as possible, because all of these things could also be dangerous.

For a front wheel drive (2005 Altima SE-R), would the front or rear set of tires normally wear faster?

If you rotate them properly, using a modified x rotation pattern, and you never exceed 7,500 miles between rotations, the tires will all wear at the same rate.

REEL LIFE: Palestinian terrorist Abu Daoud and Israel's former Mossad spy chief Zvi Zamir are both irked at Steven Spielberg for not using either as a consultant on his film "Munich." The men were involved on opposite sides of in the 1972 event that inspired the film.

Dancing Queen

On 'Confessions,' Madonna hits the clubs like it's 1982

AGING GRACEFULLY | Madonna won't let a few cracked ribs and broken bones spoil her party. Weeks after falling from her horse on the grounds of her English estate, she's in the mood to dance.

After the serious tone of 2003's "American Life," Madonna wanted this collection to be happy and buoyant. "It was like, honey, I want to dance," she said. "I wanted to lift myself and others up with this record."

The new album, "Confessions on a Dance Floor," is due Nov. 15 from Warner Bros. A special edition, which includes a picture book and bonus track, arrives in December.

"I wanted a record with no ballads," Madonna said. "I wanted there to be no breaks, with one song segueing into the next — just like in a disco."

The 12-track album was inspired by the many remixes her songs have received over the years. Madonna collaborated primarily with producer Stuart Price, who was part of her touring band for the Re-Invention and Drowned World treks.

Together they took Madonna's music back to the place where she first made her mark in the early '80s: the clubs. But they did so in a way that, while wickedly retro, pushes the beats and rhythms into the future.

Lead single "Hung Up" is off to an explosive start. The energetic, ABBA-sampling track first appeared in September, in a TV spot for Motorola's iTunes-compatible ROKR mobile phone. On Oct. 17, the song made its worldwide premiere during a live, 10-minute radio interview between Ryan Seacrest and Madonna. The interview was made available to stations around the world. Three days later, Madonna appeared on "Late Show With David Letterman."

Then Madonna made surprise appearances Oct. 22 at two New York nightclubs.

"I'm a businesswoman," she said. "The music industry has changed. There's a lot of competition... You must join forces with other brands and corporations. You're an idiot if you don't."

One new alliance is a relationship with Apple that for the first time allows her songs to be sold through the iTunes Music Store.

If Madonna's new fondness for iTunes is part of a larger Apple initiative — a branded video iPod or Nano, perhaps — no one is talking.

The singer does like the idea of a Madonna-branded pink Nano, though: "That would be cool. I like that."

Savvy Viewers Shun the Rerun

Networks are losing audiences to cable and home video

BUSINESS PLAN | Just when you start caring what's in the hatch in "Lost" or who's in the basement in "Desperate Housewives," then wham! You're bounced back to an episode that aired last month. Networks are hitting the rewind button way too soon. If the situation has improved this month, it's because this is the fall sweeps period. Frustrated viewers who know this are tuning out. Here's why:

HBO wisely launched "The Sopranos" when the networks offered reruns.

1. Smart viewers. Even your grandmother knows now that Nielsen's big sweeps are November, February and May. The networks only produce around 22 episodes of a series per season, which, if aired consecutively, would run out in February. So to stretch originals into May, non-sweeps months get repeats.

2. Competition. When ABC, CBS and NBC were the whole ball game into the 1980s, we had the "least objectionable program" theory, which said viewers would watch whichever show they found less awful than the others. That's no longer true, with dozens of channels to turn to and digital cable's shows on demand.

3. Cable seasons. HBO, Showtime, Sci Fi and other cablers took advantage of network reruns by launching their big-ticket original series in repeat-laden times such as March or June. They held viewers' attention by offering a whole season in consecutive weeks, no interruptions.

4. DVD. Video discs let you have a fresh episode every hour. No repeats, no distractions, series immersion.

Rated G for Gunplay

Animated movies for kids are catching up to our violent society

RATINGS | A shotgun-wielding hunter mercilessly pursues his target. Angry space aliens vaporize a defenseless town. A bloodthirsty shark preys on the weak and tiny.

These movie scenes aren't from the latest action thrillers — they're from G-rated animated films like Disney's new "Chicken Little."

As pop culture mimics social values, violence and veiled sexual references have crept into the seemingly innocent cartoon landscape, giving parents new reason to do research beyond the ratings.

It's not that the Motion Picture Association of America's ratings board has become more permissive, said MPAA president Dan Glickman: "It's bound to be a reflection of society."

It's also a reflection of movie studios following the formula of hits like the "Toy Story" and "Shrek" films, whose scripts include plenty of subtle jokes aimed at adults.

Historically, cartoons have always contained some strong elements. But a series of Harvard studies confirms that violence has increased during the history of animated G-rated films. They are also likely to contain more violent content than their live-action counterparts.

DOUBLE ENTENDRE: Even in family-friendly films such as "Wallace & Gromit: The Curse of the Were-Rabbit," sophisticated jokes wink at the adults in the audience.

"All the animated films involve violence or threats of violence," noted pediatrician Ken Haller, a professor at Saint Louis University School of Medicine. "Snow White gets poisoned. The problem is when kids don't have anyone to help them process these things."

The MPAA's Glickman also cited old Road Runner cartoons, where all sorts of unthinkable things happened to the Coyote.

"We like to think that things are more violent today, and it may be," he said. "But 30 or 40 years ago, there were a lot of things falling on heads and dropping off cliffs."

Decadence & Lust on DVD

Two foreign movie masterpieces get plush home releases

DVDS | The haunting 1953 Japanese fantasy-drama "Ugetsu" (being released on DVD by Criterion) is the crowning achievement in the career of director Kenji Mizoguchi.

The themes of greed, lust and the folly of war are explored in this tale of an ambitious potter who falls under the spell of a beautiful ghost and a poor farmer who is obsessed with becoming a samurai. Extras include effete commentary with filmmaker and critic Tony Rayns, a feature-length documentary on Mizoguchi, an appreciation of the filmmaker by director Masahiro Shinoda, an interview with "Ugetsu" assistant director Tokuzo Tanaka and a vintage chat with the late cinematographer Kazuo Miyagawa.

Just a few years after releasing a two-disc set of the 1960 Federico Fellini classic "La Dolce Vita," Koch Lorber Films has brought out a Mizoguchi's "Ugetsu" meditates delicately on greed, desire and ambition.

"Deluxe Collector's Edition."

The first two discs of the set are the same, but the new edition includes an extra disc with a documentary on composer Nino Rota, a frank 2004 interview with star Anita Ekberg, a 1960 TV interview with Fellini, an interview conducted in French with star Marcello Mastroianni also from 1960, brief footage with the film's last surviving screenwriter, Tullio Pinelli, and an excerpt of an interview with actor Donald Sutherland about Fellini.

(American College of Allergists)

FACT: One out of six people who suffer from allergies do so because of the direct relationship to fungi and bacteria in air duct systems. (Total Health Magazine)

Dust, dirt, pollen, animal dander and other air-borne contaminants are pulled into your duct system every time the furnace or air conditioner runs.

These contaminants build up inside the ductwork over time and can help make your duct system a breeding ground for mold spores, bacteria, fungus, mildew and other microbes.

Each time the furnace or air conditioner is turned on, contaminants are spewed out and circulated throughout your home and affect the health and comfort of your family.

Family members who suffer from allergies, asthma or other respiratory ailments as well as children and the elderly are especially vulnerable to the effects of indoor air pollutants.

The removal of contaminants from the entire HVAC system is recognized by industry experts as the most effective way to eliminate air duct pollutants. This is referred to as the "source removal" method of duct cleaning.

In addition to the obvious health benefits, ducts cleaning can help you maintain a cleaner home. It also helps to restore HVAC system capacity and lessen running time, resulting in lower heating and cooling bills.

The HEPA-AIRE method used by our company assures you that your ducts are being cleaned with the most advanced source removal equipment available.

No Natural Gas? No problem!

Cyprus Air can also install a small propane tank behind your chimney so you can enjoy the beauty, comfort and warmth of gas logs that require no venting. All the heat stays in the room.

A large natural flame uses a minimum of gas and offers moneysaving 99% fuel efficiency. You can burn the logs with the damper open or closed. A closed damper will keep the room heated. No soot or ashes to worry about. Our sets include an oxygen depletion sensor for safe, unvented operation and is design-certified by CSA.

HOT BUTTON ISSUES: The real debate Sunday wasn't between "West Wing" faux candidates Arnold Vinik and Matt Santos, but between NBC and other channels on this hotly contested night. The peacock saw an uptick of 1.4 million voters — uh, viewers.

ON TV TONIGHT

STAGE TO SCREEN

PBS precedes the Kennedy Center special (see TV feature) with PIONEERS OF PRIMETIME (8 p.m., PBS), an hourlong salute to performers who made the leap from the variety shows to film to the new medium that Groucho Marx dubbed "TV — Terrible Vaudeville."

YEAH, SHE'S HITTING ON YOU

Skyler's kind words are misinterpreted on the second season premiere of STACKED (8:30 p.m., Fox).

WERE THEY NOT STANDING

TO THE RIGHT?

CRIMINAL MINDS (9 p.m., CBS) Vacationing families are targeted for murder.

SO ANA LUCIA KICKS HIM IN IT

LOST (9 p.m., ABC) Sawyer's wound festers.

MULTIMEDIA: Bob Hope was one of the performers who jumped to television.

BLOODY SCIENCE

SCIENCE OF THE BIBLE (10 p.m., National Geographic) revisits one of the most controversial aspects of the New Testament, the story of the arrest and execution of Jesus. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

The Comic's Comic

PBS gives humorist Steve Martin an extra half-hour of funny

AWARDS | Comic, writer, actor and producer Steve Martin receives praise from his peers as well as the 2005 Mark Twain Prize on a two-hour special "Kennedy Center Presents" (9 p.m., PBS).

PBS expanded this presentation from 90 minutes to a full two hours to incorporate a wealth of gags from Martin as well as colleagues such as Larry David and Lily Tomlin. This is fitting, since any salute to Martin has a lot of ground to cover.

PASSING THE TORCH: Mark Twain, on pedestal, gives props to Steve Martin.

He was part of an Emmy-winning writing team for the "Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" when that show was daring censors back in the late 1960s. Martin was a frequent participant on "Saturday Night Live" during its formative years.

Martin followed up the success of his 1979 screen comedy "The Jerk" with the ambitious "Pennies From Heaven," a musical fantasy by British writer Dennis Potter. Although "Pennies" failed to find a large audience, it's a haunting, memorable film.

Martin has hosted the Oscars with wit and understatement. He has carved out a reputation as a literary humorist in The New Yorker. He currently stars in "Shopgirl," a film adapted from his novella. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

The George Washington University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Institution.

Help that empowers.
 Hope that lasts.

Every year, we assist more than one hundred thousand people in the Washington area. And you can too, by designating Catholic Charities Foundation - United Way/CFC #8054.

- We provide the help that carries people through crises — and the hope that strengthens lives.
- We secure housing for Hurricane Katrina survivors swept away to an unfamiliar place — and pay the unexpected bills of working families trying to keep their homes.
- We shelter single mothers looking for refuge for their children — and teach them a better way to provide for their families.
- We guide people with disabilities toward independence — and minister to the medical needs of immigrants.

The Funnies

Newspapers hope to woo young readers with 'manga' cartoons

"Doonesbury" and "Peanuts," make room for "manga."

Come January, the Sunday funnies of several major North American newspapers will have doe-eyed women in frilly outfits, effeminate long-haired heroes and other trademark images of the Japanese comic style.

The reason? Newspaper editors want to attract more young readers. A study released earlier this year by the Carnegie Corporation put the age of newspaper readers at 53 and climbing — hardly a recipe for circulation growth.

"We thought if teens and young kids are reading manga, (pronounced MANG-uh) then why don't we get something in the paper that teens want to read?" said John Glynn, vice president at Stuart Levy sings the praises of Japanese manga cartoons, like Van von Hunter.

Martin Fischhoff, assistant managing editor at The Detroit News, which also plans to carry manga, believes it has the potential to be a big hit and draw new readers.

"I know how popular manga and anime are among a young demographic. Go to any bookstore and there are kids swarming around the manga shelves. And by kids I mean everyone from high school into their 30s. There is even a local store devoted to manga paraphernalia, which is always packed," he said in an e-mail. "But this trend clearly hasn't made itself felt in newspaper comic sections."

Stuart Levy, chief executive of the cartoon distributor TOKYOPOP Inc., is now working on a musical film based on manga.

"Manga is the core of this kind of lifestyle and culture, which is becoming a global trend," he said in his Tokyo office. "I'd tell people Japan is such a creative place, and they would say, 'No, no. no. Japan is not creative. It just copies the West.' And I said, 'That's totally wrong.'"

His next project: offering an English-language manga service on the Web that will allow people to view the comics online or download them onto their mobile phones to read on the go. YURI KAGEYAMA (AP)

Universal Press Syndicate, which distributes comics and columns globally to newspapers.

The U.S. newspaper debut is a bit of a landmark for manga — a product of Japanese pop culture that has never been quite mainstream in the United States, although it's long been a hit with the younger generation that grew up on Pokemon, Hello Kitty and Japanese animation movies — or "anime" for short.

"This could be something that really explodes," Glynn said in a telephone interview from Kansas City, Missouri. "This is a great way to take a chance and change the landscape and readership of your paper."

Several newspapers that have signed on to carry the two English-language manga strips on Sundays include the Los Angeles Times, Denver Post, Vancouver Sun and Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

The Estrogen Question

Health

Could some younger women benefit from hormone therapy?

Richard White toiled in his laboratory at the Medical College of Georgia for eight years trying to understand how estrogen helped prevent heart attacks and stroke. His studies looked promising; estrogen seemed to prime the female cardiovascular system to prevent clotting and relax blood vessels.

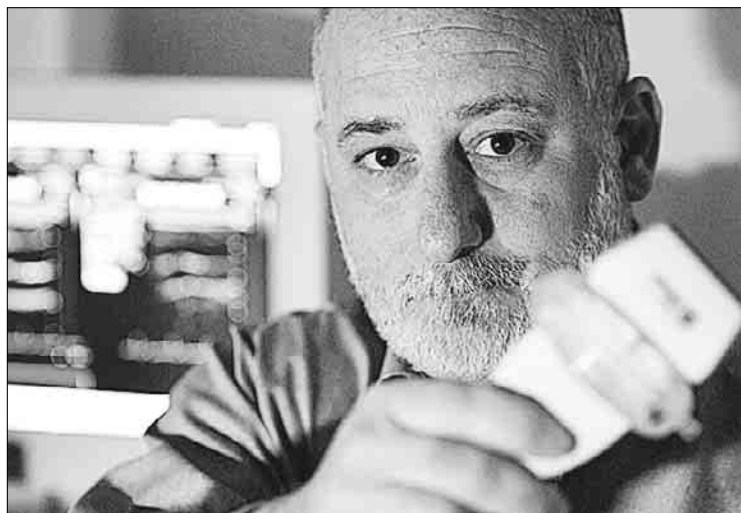

So when the massive Women's Health Initiative results were released three years ago — finding that estrogen therapy in older postmenopausal women seemed to cause more heart attacks and strokes — White was dumbfound-

“We used to think that hormone replacement therapy should be taken by everybody. Now the pendulum has swung too far the other way.”

DR. HUGH S. TAYLOR
YALE UNIVERSITY

ed. “It just didn't make any sense,” he said.

He went back to the drawing board, and so have a lot of other researchers. More and more doctors are trying to reconcile the Women's Health Initiative's negative findings with other research suggesting estrogen therapy can't be that bad.

The University of Southern California's Dr. Howard Hodis is researching estrogen.

These doctors say hormone replacement therapy may still be valuable for some younger women. They also say the recommendations emerging from the Women's Health Initiative — that hormone therapy should only be used in a low dose for the shortest time possible by women who need it the most — may be needlessly restrictive.

“We used to think hormone replacement therapy should be taken by everyone,” says Dr. Hugh S. Taylor, an associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Yale University School of Medicine. “Now the pendulum has swung too far the other way.”

The Women's Health Initiative was a randomized, controlled trial of 161,000 women designed in part to assess the effect of hormones on health. Before the study, doctors believed that estrogen protected women from bone fractures, heart attacks, stroke and dementia, improved skin tone and soothed the sometimes harsh symptoms of menopause.

The results, however, showed that study participants taking hormones had a slightly higher risk of heart attack and stroke as well as breast cancer.

“The WHI showed that if women have heart disease, by all means don't give them estrogen. It will make things worse,” says Dr. S. Mitchell Harmon, director of the Kronos Longevity Research Institute in Phoenix. “But we still don't know if estrogen is protective of a younger population group.”

Blame It on Rio

Artefacto

3333 M St. NW | 202-338-3337
Mon.-Sat. 10 a.m.-7 p.m., Sun. 12 p.m.-6 p.m.

MY BRAZILIAN sister-in-law not only dresses like a model and looks like a movie star, she also furnishes her house in a modern-yet-warm way I think of as South American chic. This are-we-in-Rio look — exotic woods, neutral upholstery, low cocktail tables — invaded Georgetown recently when Brazilian contemporary furniture giant Artefacto opened a 16,000-square-foot showroom on M Street.

STYLE: With its gauzy white curtains, flickering candles and samba soundtrack, Artefacto feels more like a mod boutique hotel than a furniture store. The goods straddle the gulf between trad and rad decor, with Art Deco-ish dining chairs, coconut-wood platform beds and cowhide rugs harmonizing expertly. Natural materials and textures rule; showy pieces include a crocodile-print leather console with chrome legs and a swoopy-armed sofa in mallaca (the stem of the rattan palm). The geometric coffee tables are showstoppers — there's the "Bloom," a glossy, black square with a cheeky red under-shelf, and the rectangular "Baez," covered in white leather (just the thing to serve caipirinhas on). Accessories such as blocky lamps with wood bases and reptile-textured pillows echo the furniture's clean, lean lines.

PRICE: Like its high-end neighbors across the street at Cady's Alley, Artefacto's prices skew toward champagne, not brewski, budgets. Dining tables, for example, run from $2,700 to $6,500, while queen bed frames start at $1,841. Accessories soar as well: A silk pillow is $151 and a leather one, $500. But the cutting-edge designs and solid construction (drawers that slide like butter, sharp-edged upholstery) make these investment pieces — unless you'd rather use the dough to jet to Sao Paulo.

SERVICE: Dark-suited salespeople

(mostly attractive women) seemed happy to run numbers on the merch or even recommend nearby restaurants. Cristina Badillo is hospitable without being clingy, and is well-informed about furniture construction and materials. I got lots of love tarted up like a McLean McMansion-furnishing trophy wife on a slow weekday. But on a busy Saturday, my flannel-clad, bed-headed husband and I were mostly ignored, through this made testing the cushy sectionals easier.

BONUS POINTS: Artefacto offers interior design services, so you can bring in photos or floorplans of your home for help making good choices. Also, the chairs encased in plastic pods and suspended from the ceiling boggle the eye.

BUREAUCRACY: Furniture is mostly custom-made and takes two to 12 weeks to arrive. Delivery charge is 8 percent of the merchandise total.

BOTTOM LINE: Even if your pocketbook can't take the prices, Artefacto is distilling a cool, contempo style not seen much in D.C. It's worth visiting for the design inspiration alone.

High fashion and Playboy don't seem like an instant pair. But, like deep-fried pickles, there's just something compelling there. Master of couture ROBERTO CAVALLI teamed with the Playboy empire to redesign the iconic Bunny suit, and the new look premiered at the Palms Casino Resort in Las Vegas on Friday. While the uniforms stick to the old-school bathing-suit-and-bunny-ears look, the additions of spangles, textures and new fabrics bring the costume (first developed in 1960) up-to-date. They will be the standard uniform for the Playboy venues at the new tower of the Palms, set to open in May 2006. KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

Fun With Breakables

Most people would argue that the martini glass is only boring when it's empty. Nonetheless, BOMBAY SAPPHIRE is sponsoring a design competition, inviting aspiring artists 21 years or older to give the martini glass a makeover. The winner will be flown with a guest to Milan to compete in the global finals and will receive a $3,000 gift certificate to Apple stores. The competition is open until Dec. 1. See designerglasscompetition.com for details. K.P.K.

Getting Married? Express is seeking couples with weddings or commitment ceremonies taking place in the next six months for a new column that will feature couple profiles. Please send your favorite informal photo (wacky is fine, professionally shot is not), plus your name, contact info and the ceremony date to weddings@readexpress.com. Then we'll contact you with some questions. Not everyone who sends in a picture can be in the paper — sorry! Also, please don't send any original photos, because we can't return them.

Fixing What You Can't Undo

I feel ashamed of myself for something I did this weekend. I hooked up with someone I knew had feelings for me, even though I don't have feelings for her. Now she (understandably) keeps calling me and expecting me to call her, and all I want to do is pretend it never happened. I've always strived to treat other people well, so I'm having a really hard time coping with the fact that I've essentially used this woman and am now about to hurt her feelings very badly on top of it by telling her I don't want to see her again. How do I spare her feelings — and also restore my own sense of self-worth? — ANONYMOUS, D.C.

As Ashlee Simpson now knows, how you face your mistakes can matter just as much as the fact that you made them in the first place. You've essentially got two choices. The first is to badly hurt this woman's feelings over the course of several ambiguous and awkward weeks. Or, choice number two: You 'fess up immediately, say you used poor judgment, you feel awful about it, you don't see the two of you going anywhere and you're truly sorry and feel like a jack-ass. Her feelings may be hurt just as badly, but she'll have that much more time to get over it and much less anxiety and frustration in the process, as you'll have regarded her with respect, not pity. To eventually get over your shame, you must belatedly do what you didn't do before: Treat her like you'd want to be treated.

I'm wondering when it's ever worth it to keep at a long-distance relationship that doesn't seem to be working. I've been dating a guy for five months and we've been long-distance most of that time. I really think he's great, but I'm finding that it's hard at the end of the day to connect over the phone or e-mail. There is also an issue in that he doesn't seem to respect how I spend my time, which means that often when I talk about what movies I've seen or who I've hung out with, he seems to belittle it. We have no idea when we'll be able to be in the same place, so it's hard to judge how long we'd have to stick out this long-distance arrangement. What kind of criteria should someone could use to see if it's worth it? — VIRGINIA GIRLFRIEND

Forget geography — when is it worth it to keep at any dating relationship that doesn't seem to be working? Though the stress of long-distance separation can cause trouble in even the strongest and healthiest of pairings (alas, Paris and Paris), your particular issues seem less about "long-distance" and more about "relationship." If he doesn't make you feel good about yourself, and you don't seem drawn to each other enough to think about plans for the future, it seems that even living next door to each other might not be enough. Ask yourself if you're truly happy in the here and now with the guy he is at this very moment, and you'll probably have your answer.

Those Days Are Over

WHILE I HAVEN'T DECIDED how I feel about the Metro seating plan, I would like to tell S. McDougall (Letters, Nov. 8) that he or she is incorrect to think that Metro riders are courteous. I have been in a walking foot cast once and pregnant twice. Only two times was I ever offered a seat. I would literally get shoved by someone trying to get on the train before me to get a seat. So, indeed, the days of someone giving up a seat to the elderly, infirm or pregnant are over.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You can do much to increase your pleasure and profits, but you're going to have to follow the rules. Don't be tempted to cheat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may be able to parlay a pure pleasure into something that is quite lucrative when all is said and done. Your role is essential.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may be hanging on to the past in all the wrong ways right now—and that's what's holding you back. Enjoy memories; avoid obsessions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) This is a good day to try, once again, to broaden your horizons and increase the amount of hands-on learning you can do. Get involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may realize that a recent failure may have been nothing more than a combination of bad taste and bad timing—two things you can surely fix.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You should be able to maintain your optimistic outlook all day long—provided you focus on what you can do, rather than what you can't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're going to find bargains wherever you go, so don't splurge on anything that doesn't suit your needs or your bank account.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your first look at a new opportunity may reveal only a small portion of what could lie ahead if you change paths at this juncture. Take more time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You can help someone come alive in a new and perhaps rather intimidating situation. By day's end, you'll be playing the role of teacher AND student.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A dream can come true, but only if you approach it from a realistic and down-to-earth point of view. Get your feet on the ground.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be tempted to change your story; stick to the truth, and make things as clear and specific as you can. You're to be commended.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Though the easy way out is not for you, there is no reason for you to make things more difficult than they already are.

Getting Ahead

Relax and Work

At the Potomac Massage Training Institute, students Bebe Edmondson, right, and Melissa Keyser practice arm massages.

Launch a career in giving massages or teaching yoga

Candles are lit, soft music is playing and you've never felt more relaxed as you lie on the massage table feeling every knot kneaded out of your back. Then, your hour's up. Time to go back to work.

Whether you chill on a massage table or in downward dog position, everyone has their favorite outlet. With numerous programs in the area, it's easier than ever to turn that outlet into a career in teaching yoga or giving massage.

That's what Jeanne Goldberg

wants to do. Goldberg, 40, just finished the massage therapist program at the Heritage Institute in Manassas. She worked at the Institute for a year before she began the program and, as a perk, got free massages. "I always felt relaxed when I was getting them," she said, but "I didn't know until I tried how unbelievably relaxing it is to do. It's really gratifying."

Methods of promoting wellness by relaxing the mind and relieving the body have gone from New Age to mainstream over the past few decades. Today, you can schedule more than a dozen kinds of massage or sample many types of yoga. Though once considered just a luxury, more and more people are trying yoga and massage. And medical evidence continues to show that both have serious health benefits, including relieving depression, alleviating pain and reducing anxiety.

Most massage training programs teach deep tissue massage and Swedish massage, the kinds typically offered at spas. Traditional massage classes must include at least 500 hours of training for state licensure in the District and Virginia and 600 hours in Maryland.

But other types of schools are popping up. Touch of Asia School of Traditional Thai Massage and Herbal Medicine, in Sterling, opened in 2003 and trains students to give this more active form of massage, which includes stretching as well as pressure.

Many programs go far beyond just the physical. Classes at Potomac Massage Training Institute in northwest D.C. include lectures on anatomy and physiology, business and ethics classes, and case studies. In addition, students practice massage on each other, and the institute has a public clinic where both students and graduates work.

Yoga teacher training is equally involved. At Tranquil Space, a vinyasa studio in Dupont Circle, the most basic level of training takes 33 hours over three weekends, not including reading and homework. Level two requires 200 hours, after which students can apply for certification from the national organization Yoga Alliance, which is not required to work but can help establish credibility.

On a recent weekend at one of Tranquil Space's teacher training classes, Geri Smith tried to talk a classmate through a warm-up. "I'm not used to verbalizing how people move," she said. Even though attending class and doing the homework takes up a lot of time, she said, "it's not a hardship because I wouldn't want to be doing anything else."

The attachment Smith feels to yoga is echoed by many involved in wellness careers. Many view the jobs as paths to their own fulfillment, not only professionally but spiritually as well. "It's been a really great inward journey," said Cheryl Dodwell, who left the investment banking world several years ago and graduated from PMTI last summer. "I've had to figure out my own relationship with my body and my beliefs about what I can and can't do."

Professionally, it's not so bad for enrichment, either. Massage therapists, especially those who work at home, can set their own hours and charge anywhere from $50 to $150, or more, per hour. At spas or salons, therapists often work on commission, taking in around 50 percent of what they make, plus tips.

Yoga teaching "is not a job people take to make money," said Siobhan Troy, a teacher trainer at Tranquil Space, and many teachers do it as a second job. Still, if that job involves peace of mind and relaxation, many people don't mind staying late.

Teach Yoga, Give Massage

Potomac Massage Training Institute students Kerry Flynn-Roy, left, and Wendy Roberts are schooled in the art of hand massage by instructor Bill Getz.

Below is a sampling of schools in the area that offer training for yoga and massage careers. We've included only programs that teach to national certification programs. If you want to teach Bikram yoga you're out of luck here and just about everywhere else in the country. In order to be certified, you have to take a class from Bikram Choudhury himself in Los Angeles. BETSY QUERNA the two primary designations, Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL) and Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) sound similar, the differences matter, both in terms of your career goals and the population you want to teach.

Both TEFL and TESOL certificates serve as introductions to the field of ESL education. "TESOL usually designates teaching English to non-native English speakers in the U.S. or in other English-speaking countries," said John Segota of the TESOL, INC., educators association. TEFL "is primarily [for] teaching English in countries where English is not the lingua franca."

But there's no hard-and-fast standard, and often the certifications can be used interchangeably to teach both here and abroad. To confuse matters further, neither certification can be used to teach in public schools in the United States (you'll need teaching credentials in your state, to start with). And some schools will hire teachers who don't have TESOL or TEFL certification, though both can give applicants an edge over the competition.

Certificate programs have earned great popularity with recent college grads interested in working abroad. Many schools and universities outside the U.S. will accept certification, though some, especially those in Europe, will require a master's degree.

Some certificate trainees studied a particular region or culture in school and want to spend some time there, explained Mame-Yaa, the TEFL certificate program assistant at the private LADO International College. "A lot of our graduates who go to the Middle East have an undergraduate or graduate degree in Middle Eastern Studies and they want to experience the region to enhance what they already know about policy."

gram, said she's seen a rise in students who are interested in starting a new career or who want to volunteer to teach ESL in the area. "A third group we've noticed," she said, "is people from foreign countries who want to pick up the certification so they can teach English back in their native countries."

The demand for certified English teachers abroad is high, especially in the Middle East and Asia, according to program coordinators. "Many countries, especially Korea and places in South East Asia will pay for your airfare," said Mame-Yaa. "They need teachers so badly they want to make sure your stay is comfortable."

Certificate trainees who wish to teach ESL in the D.C. area will also find many opportunities. Northern Virginia is "blossoming with non-native speakers and people are very eager to learn English," said Steven Weinberger, associate professor and director of applied linguistics at George Mason University.

Local jobs available to certificate holders tend to be part-time and without benefits, said Joan Blankmann, the job bank coordinator for the Washington Area TESOL (WATESOL), a professional organization for teachers and volunteers. Those with master's degrees have more options, she said, such as teaching at community colleges.

University programs, though more expensive and time-consuming than those offered by private companies, boast several advantages. Besides a brand-name, credits can often be applied to future master's degrees. Many cater to professionals by holding intensive summer courses or evening classes.

Some caution is warranted when considering courses from private language companies. Many such schools offer programs that are quick and cheap, but may not offer the depth of a lengthier course.

A good TESOL and TEFL certificate program will require a set number of teaching or tutoring hours during which trainees can work directly with a class or tutoree. The program should also give trainees a chance to observe their instructor's or classmates' teaching methods. No matter what, make sure you have some hands-on teaching experience with English-language learners before finishing a program.

A certificate can help you launch a career in teaching English to non-native speakers here or abroad, but if you want to establish a long-term career in the field, you should consider a master's program.

Carol Weidner initially chose LADO, a private school. "I was working on adapting a language program to a CD-ROM and I needed a TESOL certification program that was quick, short, and not too expensive." She later found that she couldn't transfer the credits when she enrolled in the TESOL master's program at American University.

"Decide what your goal is and then decide on the school," said Weidner. "If you taught abroad for a while it would give you lots of experience, but you will still have to get your master's degree at some point."

Learning To Teach English

Before enrolling in a certificate program, decide what you intend to do with it. If you're interested in teaching abroad or teaching part-time in the area, you might find that a certificate program from a private language school is what you need. If you're more serious about pursuing a long-term career in the field or perhaps a degree, a university program might be a safer bet. Here are a few of the programs in the area that offer English language teaching certificates.
